Mission Statement:

The mission of the Greenville High School Performing Arts Department is to give all interested students the opportunity to experience and receive "hands on" information about all aspects of live theater. The productions are an educational tool which give students positive reinforcement for the use of their gifts and talents; and helps them receive experience in team building and interpersonal relationships. The Theater Arts Program helps GHS students celebrate the human experience through a variety of artist theater events. The opportunity to be involved in the program is open to all students with a variety of artists interests and skills.

This program is presented for the purpose of helping students and the public become aware of, understand, and appreciate diverse cultures, history and religious diversity through music. By including these materials, the school district does not endorse any form of religious belief or non-belief nor does it intend to support any such belief.

"Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" is produced with the support of Comprehensive Public Services, Inc.
Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat

Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, the first collaboration between Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice, tells the story of a young man named Joseph living in the land of Canaan. His father's favorite son, Joseph is perhaps a little spoiled. While the rest of his brothers are forced to wear sheepskins, he struts around in a fabulous rainbow-colored coat, a gift from his adoring father. The rest of Joseph's brothers aren't too pleased with the situation and when Joseph goes so far as to tell them of a dream he had in which their sheaves of corn bow down to his sheaf of corn, they decide they have finally had enough.

Joseph's brothers abduct him, destroy his cherished coat, and toss him into a pit to perish. But when a group of Ismaelites come by at the last minute, the brothers have a change of heart and decide not to murder Joseph, but rather to sell him into slavery. Either way, he's out of their hair, and this way, they make a little extra cash. So they slaughter a goat, bloody up Joseph's coat of many colors, and return to their father, pretending great sorrow at the unfortunate death of their poor brother Joseph.

Joseph, however, will not be put down so easily. After being sold to an Egyptian property owner and serving a stint in prison, he uses his dream-reading abilities to secure an interview with the Pharaoh who is so impressed with the young man, he immediately appoints him Minister of Agriculture. Years later, when a severe famine hits the land, Joseph's brothers come begging for food. Realizing that they don't recognize him, Joseph decides to stage a little surprise for his would-be murderers.

Lasting only fifteen minutes when it was originally presented as a cantata at the Colton Court School in London on March 1, 1968, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat was revised five years later by Webber and Rice, expanded to 40 minutes and presented at the West End. It was expanded again, this time to 90 minutes, before its first New York production at the Boston Academy of Music in 1976. In 1981, the show opened at an East Village theatre before moving to the Royale on January 27, 1982 for 787 performances.

Director's Notes

We are excited, pleased, and very proud of what our one hundred and forty students plus twenty-five adults have accomplished to bring this outstanding production of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat.

Every student involved has risen to the occasion, and in some cases, gone far beyond what was expected of them. We have challenged the cast and stretched them far beyond what I'm sure they thought they could accomplish. So hats off, curtsies and bows to our gifted creative cast, our artistic musicians, the fast-moving tech crew, and the talented staff for a professional job well done.

Students have developed not only music, acting and team building skills, but they have learned organization and communication. Everyone is a part of the team and has been involved from the beginning of rehearsals. The Performing Arts is a participation event. No one sits on the side lines. Everyone is involved from start to finish.

This musical has been a new venture for us. With the entire production being sung, it made sense that we incorporate the production as part of the vocal music curriculum. The students have learned so much about the many aspects of musical theater throughout their rehearsals all of which has brought us to what you see today.

Thanks also to all the parents who helped out back stage running after the actors, picking up “stuff”, bringing food, pinning costumes and painting faces. Also to the coaches and employees who have given students time off so they could perform for their community.

This has truly been a team effort. Our personal thanks to everyone for all the time, love, and energy you have all given this show. Truly it has been a job well done.

Enjoy!

Directors,
Ruth Hansen
Joel Van Houten

SENIOR NOTES

Many of the seniors have been involved in theater for most of their lives. We started in Hans Christian Andersen Theater (HCAT), then we were involved in middle school drama and now high school.

Many people take these plays for granted but they have taught us many great life skills as well as social skills. We feel that the Theater Department has had a very positive affect on our lives. This department will also have a positive affect on all up and coming students.

As we move on we will never forget all the great memories these plays have given us. We can’t imagine life without theater at Greenville High School. It brings so many great elements together.

We would like to thank the staff at Greenville High School, the Board of Education and the Administration for their great support. None of this would be possible if it wasn’t for them. Most of all we would also like to thank Mrs. Hansen, Mr. Van Houten, Mr. Mason, Mrs. Willard, Mrs. Perry, Mr. Chapman, Mr. Glover and their crew.

Thanks for all the great memories GHS.
